Publication of research outputs in high quality journals, most especially in ISI or Scopus indexed journals, is one of the key measures of promoting research excellence. Publishing researches may not only serve as channel for communicating new information, methodologies and findings, validating the quality of research, but can also be viewed as mark of achievement in local and international academic communities.

Realizing the tedious process of scholarly writing and translating researches into published articles, the University through the Knowledge Management Center (KMC) has been giving incentives and awards to acknowledge researchers for their efforts and motivate them to publish their research outputs.

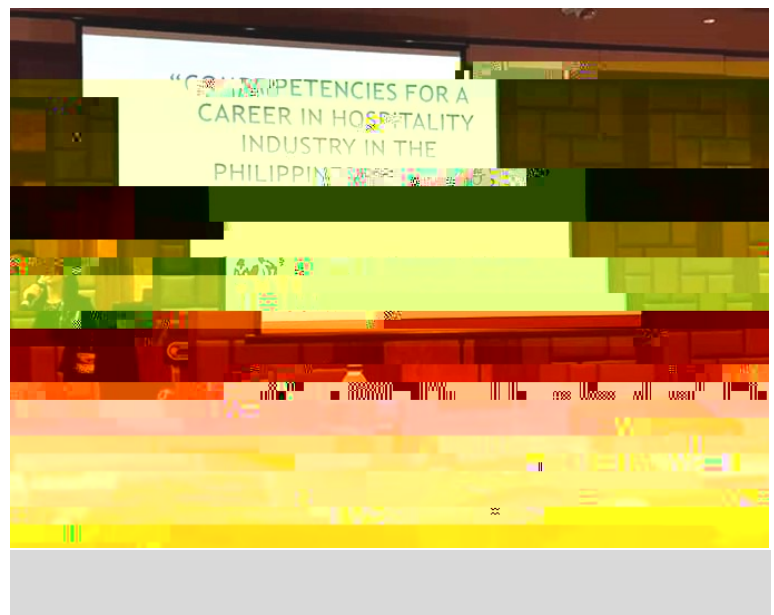

Publication incentives, financial support and recognition awards are granted provided that faculty researchers and staff are of regular or contractual status in the University, papers are published in institutional, regional, national or institutional refereed journal, the paper is aligned with the thrusts and priorities of the University, the paper should not have been published in other journals, and the research is either internally/externally funded or thesis/dissertation of faculty or staff in which the University is identified as affiliation of the author.

Ms. Pia Rhoda Pinpin-Lucero, faculty of the College of Education – Home Economics Vocational and Technical Education Department (HEVTED), presented her research paper entitled “Competencies for a Career in the Hospitality Industry in the Philippines in 2030” and won the Best Paper award in the Thesis-in-Progress (TiP) session during the 24th Asia Pacific Tourism Association (APTA) Annual Conference held in Mactan, Cebu on July 3-5, 2018.

APTA is an internationally acclaimed association in the field of tourism and hospitality which holds annual conferences, publishes Social Sciences Citation Index (SSCI)

Monetary incentives are based on the category of the refereed journal as shown below:

Internally/Externally

listed journal (Asia Pacific Journal of Tourism Research, APJTR), and distributes its quality research papers all over the world. It aims to facilitate quality tourism and hospitality research, especially, in Asia-Pacific area, to share research achievements and to exchange ideas between academics and their counterparts in the business world.

APTA 2018 TiP (Thesis-in-Progress) session provides a workshop for graduate students to interactively discuss their research with peers, colleagues, and leading supervisors and scholars in the field. This special session enables graduate students to share and develop their research ideas in a critical but encouraging environment, explore research topics and issues for future research, build relationships with other students and scholars around the world, and get feedback

The Publication and Communication Division of the Knowledge Management Center (KMC) is accepting manuscripts for publication in the CvSU Research Journal and the Philippine Coffee Journal.
